

How You Can Get Admitted into Any Medical School You Choose

Let me show YOU how to ace your pre-med years and BECOME a DOCTOR

I'm going to guide you step-by-step through your pre-med years... so you can happily walk across the stage to loud applause from family and friends as the Dean calls your name to receive your White Coat.

Imagine that.

Seriously – getting into medical school is possible... IF YOU KNOW HOW.

Hello, I'm Jason Spears

A fourth-year medical student in New York City... the Founder of Doctor Pre-med... and I transform pre-med students into medical school applicants the schools MUST admit!

I clear a path to medical school for You

Will you be my next success?

To answer your first question... no, this isn't just what worked for me. Not at all. It's not only my personal experience... it's from an entire team of experts.

That's right – I'm giving you advice from those holding the keys to the medical school of your dreams.

Yes, I realize that's a big claim. Why believe me?

Because not only have I been doing it... I've also been writing about it the entire time... I've done it and I know what's required.

All along the way... you're advised by a former pre-med society president... who knows the decision makers... those who decide whether or not you get into medical school...

You get the best of the best... I grant you access to my pre-med dream team...

- Doctors
- Professors
- Medical Students
- Pre-health Advisors
- Admission Committee members

Believe me... these are the people you want to hear from.

Here are some of the ways I help you...

- 6-18 months of one-on-one coaching to get you into medical school.
- Your personalized roadmap.
- Biweekly calls.
- Unlimited email exchanges.

You're going to zoom past the competition and towards your medical school acceptance.

Even, if you've no idea how to stand out.

Even, if you think you have no compelling reason for wanting to attend med school.

If you're anxious about being accepted into medical school...

It seems that every day there's a new pylon placed in the path of your life... one more obstacle preventing you from receiving your white coat and stethoscope.

When you ask for help... you get the standard answers about:

- GPA
- MCAT
- ECs
- Letter of Recommendation
- Personal Statement
- Research

But honestly... does it feel like helpful advice?

Having been in your shoes... I understand how you feel... not knowing what your chances are.

You won't hear back from your first interview for at least a month... you're spending four weeks in an information vacuum, unable to plan your future. Talk about uncomfortable!

I know how anxious you are... wondering where you might be months from now. I too poured over blogs... lurked in forums... and tried to find any secret to improve my chances of being accepted.

Can you obtain this information for free?
Some of it, yes. Not all.

Sure... you can research online... but gathering all the information and keeping it in one place is a chore.

Besides... there are too many opinions... and too many myths out there... about the medical school application process. Who do you believe?

A question to a relative or acquaintance in medicine doesn't get you ahead of everyone else who is applying.

Remember... you're competing against 50,679 other pre-meds for one of a very limited number of seats in medical school class.

You know that nobody has your same level of enthusiasm... Except me. I'm with you... in your corner... and I live and breathe medicine.

I share with you my vast wealth of knowledge and experience... the kind you cannot find elsewhere...

When combined with my contacts throughout the medical community... I'm the expert who delivers your medical school acceptance.

But don't take my word for it – read the words of happy med school students I've already helped... below my signature on this page.

If you want into medical school... then you can't do it alone. You need me guiding you step-by-step...

Look... pre-med students think they know what's needed to get into medical school – good GPA and MCAT scores. Many see those two as 95% of the application procedure.

And there's some truth to that... because the electronic application process automatically rejects traditional applicants who don't meet a certain minimum GPA or

MCAT score.

There are other factors however, that medical schools consider... race... gender... medical work... volunteer experience... research experience... and more. Most, if not all pre-med students, treat these simply as boxes to be checked.

Only a few applicants may be admitted under “non-traditional” standards. These standards allow a sub-par GPA or MCAT score to be compensated for things such as gender, race, legacy, or a very interesting life story.

What do I know that most med school applicants don't?

Every med school applicant is concerned about their stats. Well, I've got you covered, with plenty of tips and advice that'll boost your GPA like a skyrocket.

And that pesky test called the MCAT? No sweat. I have a proven system to ensure you'll pass it no problem.

What about ECs? Yes, you can volunteer at the hospital... but it's not the best use of your time... because Admission Committees know you're not doing much there.

After MCAT and GPA, what's the most important factor for getting into med school? It's only a secret when you don't know it. I do, and I'll share it with you.

Can you write your way into medical school? YES – I kid you not. The trick is knowing what to write about.

Nobody wants to read about your activities or how you want to be like your family Dr. Jones... they see that all the time... because everybody does that.

Instead, I'll show you exactly what to write... that'll put you at the top of the list.

You'll also discover...

Application strategy: Determine what sets you apart... and nail your special talent that you're going to bring to the field of medicine. Plus, confirm you understand timelines and expectations for getting into medical school.

Primary Application: Ensure you have a flawless application... because you only get one chance to make a first impression.

Personal Statement: Craft an essay that gets you a med school interview. Students have absolutely loved how I have transformed their mediocre essays into masterpieces.

Custom School List: Together we develop a list of ideal programs to target... based on your stats... school preferences... geographical location... and personal interests.

AMCAS Most Meaningful: I help you pick the three activities you want to write about in-depth... how to truly sell Admission Committees on what you gained from these activities and how you'll contribute to the medical community.

Extracurriculars: Much more than listing how you spent your time... develop yourself into a package that Admission Committees readily understand... your passions... diversity... and what you're bringing to the incoming class.

Secondaries: Don't make admissions a one-way street. Show Admission Committees why you belong at their school... and flip the script to acknowledge why a medical school ought to be glad to have you.

Mock Interviews: I prepare you to answer the tough ethical questions... explain any deficiencies in your application... and provide tips on being confident. You'll walk away feeling completely prepared for any question thrown your way on interview day.

Admission Advice: when you have more offers of acceptance than you anticipated and need help choosing the best school for you.

Do you know how much medical school is going to cost you?
Over $200,000.

How much have you already paid for your undergraduate education?

Your investment in my coaching is only a tiny portion.

When you get into medical school you're set for life. Doctors have some of the highest incomes in the country.

Plus – you'll always have a job.

Look... I'm not going to cite a ton of facts... horror stories... or reasons why you need to act now.

You either see the value I provide in getting you a medical school admission... or you don't.

I work only with students and their families who see the value in my services... those who want every competitive advantage possible.

You can tell yourself coaching is too expensive. But what's truly expensive is being rejected after trying to do it yourself.

You'll have wasted an entire year of your life... you'll have lost another year of earning power... and that's money you can never reclaim.

Oh sure... you can tell yourself that you need to “figure it out” and “do additional research.” But what are you even looking for?

Or you can act now... work with a proven expert who's already accomplished what you're seeking to do... who can help you transform your life... to get you from wondering what your chances are to having multiple medical school acceptances... simply by coaching you to medical school success.

This is your chance to work with me and become the doctor you want to become.

May I share a truth with you?

The people accepted into medical school... who make their dreams come true... are decision makers.

Then there are the sad folks who stare down at the floor in shame when they tell their family... “I’m sorry... I wasn’t accepted.”

They endure stomach-turning humiliation from watching the disappointment on their family's faces...

They’re the people who want, “to think about it.”

And really, "I need to think about it" is just an excuse.

It's letting your fears stop you from doing something that can transform your current life into the life of your DREAMS.

Don't become this like this gloomy applicant...

“My MCAT score and GPA were well above average. My interview went really well. Then I was rejected.” – name withheld to spare embarrassment

Now... it's time to answer a question:

What kind of person are you?

If you'd rather gamble with your med school applications... if you're unwilling to make every effort... and to do all that's necessary to ensure you become a successful medical student...

Then please – enjoy your life. Becoming a doctor is not for everyone.

If however, you're ready to become a doctor and create the life you've always dreamed of...

If you're ready to move from "What are my chances?"

to

"I've got so many medical school acceptances I need to cancel interviews."

Some happy medical students who were in your position say...

Jason was warm and friendly; he set me up with a plan for studying and preparing for Step 1 based on my individual needs when I felt lost. He answered all of my questions and offered advice for issues I had not even thought of! I recommend reaching out to him with any questions you may have.

- Danya

I really appreciate all your help and guidance, as well as your flexibility in helping me throughout the application process. You thoroughly advised me on how to structure and write the essay, as well as the secondaries, and when I was waitlisted, you advised me to send these schools continuous updates and reiterating intent and interest.

- Priya

I really liked how you seemed sincere and how you took your time to hear me out. By hearing me out, you were able to give me some advice on studying for the MCAT. Not only that you were very kind to allow me to take advantage of your Ultimate Study Program for free and you talked a little about one of your books that is coming out that could be of good use to me.

In addition, I did not get the sense that you were trying to push your services and products on me. You seemed genuine and confident in what you provided and that is much appreciated.

Thank you for your kind and generous assistance.

As I was sharing my concerns about the MCAT, I was made to feel comfortable because you provided a peaceful and non-judgmental atmosphere over the phone. Instead of leaving our phone conversation feeling defeated, ashamed, inadequate for the task ahead, persuaded to consider another career choice and discouraged, I felt confident that with work, determination and dedication I could actually "beat" the MCAT!

-Daria M

Wow! Thank you for taking the time to review my medical school personal statement essay. Your comments are very helpful. I will apply them to my essay and start again. Thanks.

-Rory

You have helped me tremendously with my personal statement and on my journey as a premed student. I wish I would have known about your website earlier, but I am glad I found out about it before this application cycle. Thank you for taking the time to help students that hope to be in your place in the future. It truly means a lot!

- Navedeep

Just wanted to update you my daughter got pre-matched at schools in Texas and UT Southwestern from TX is her choice. Thanks for all your help in revising her primary application and your edits to her secondaries. It was terrific!

- Neena

Hey Jason, Just wanted to share the good news that I got my first interview invite yesterday for George Washington!!! I am so excited! It is scheduled for September 25 so I am looking to hire an interview coach to help me talk through my application. Thank you again for all your help!

- Carla

I am incredibly thrilled to let you know that I have been accepted to medical school at Case Western Reserve! The School is absolutely incredible with many opportunities. That being said – the school’s statistics (gpa, sgpa, and otherwise) – are off the charts, so I know that Personal Statement that you helped me made all the difference. Thank You. I am very hopeful about my future in medicine, and I know that I could not have gotten to this point without your advice and edits on the PS.

- Joanna

Jason, this is absolutely phenomenal. I would never have expected anything this good. You really know your stuff and I’m excited about how things are coming together as I prepare to apply this year. Thanks!

- Perry

Thank you very much! I have read the edits you made and I love them! I really appreciate your feedback. I felt like my teaching experience did not belong, but I did not know how to change it. Again, thank you so much! I really do appreciate it.

- Leanne

I Love getting your emails and reading your tips/advice. My school doesn’t have a good pre-med advisory department, so I have been (nearly) strictly following your advice and it has served me well thus far!

- Kennedy

I have beyond doubt benefitted from your advice, suggestions and your consistent motivation towards my approach to medical school.

- Neel

Much Thanks. You have been doing a great job in explaining to me about post bacc and SMP so far. Your emails are very very informative.

- Joe

I enjoy reading your newsletters when they come around! They always contain good information and good places to look for more medical related information.

- Eddie

I just wanted to let you know I got lucky! I was notified a couple of days ago that I got off the waitlist at UTMB in Galveston. Thank you for all your help, you are the best.

I haven't given up on my dream for medical school. And being that I am what would be considered an unconventional candidate, I am willing to do whatever it takes to make my application shine. Your website gave me inspiration and even more motivation.

- De'Naya

First of all, I want to thank you for all the amazing and informative emails you've been sending about MCAT, adcoms, everything about med school in general and even residency life. I've definitely learnt a lot from you and I appreciate all your efforts. I would like to learn a lot from you since you've gone through this whole process before and helped a lot of people too, and most important I see myself in the position you are in the future years.
